

Ex-Utah doctor files suit against Duchesne hospital

Associated Press

7 Sep 1989

A former Utah doctor has filed a federal civil rights lawsuit against Duchesne County Hospital, contending his suspension and subsequent dismissal in October violated his constitutional right to equal protection.

In his U.S. District Court suit, Dr. Michael F. Salvana, now of Paducah, Ky., seeks monetary damages to be determined at trial. Defendants include the hospital, its administrator, chief of staff and trustees, and the county commission.

Salvana, a resident of Roosevelt at the time, says the hospital appointed him to its medical staff on July 5, 1987, granting him full surgical and medical privileges.

The suit says that on Oct. 2, 1988, a patient under Salvana's care, William Cozad, was admitted by Dr. William Sullivan. However, Cozad was not asked and did not consent to Sullivan being his attending physician, the complaint contends.

A dispute arose over consultation arrangements, and on Oct. 3, hospital administrator John Jefferies and Dr. Wayne Stewart notified Salvana in writing that he was on probation and his intensive care unit privileges suspended pending review, the suit states.

The next day, Salvana alleges, Stewart revoked his admitting privileges and asked him to leave the hospital premises, threatening to call police if he returned.

However, following an Oct. 26 hearing, the hospital's ethics committee recommended Salvana's privileges be reinstated retroactively; that both he and Sullivan receive verbal reprimands for "unprofessional-like conduct," and that Jefferies and Stewart apologize in writing to Cozad and his wife, Margaret, the suit says.

Salvana said that while Stewart did reinstate him, he received a written rather than verbal reprimand. Salvana further contends that a "hostile and threatening work environment" prevent him from returning to work.

After termination, Salvana alleges, the hospital and the county commission both failed to respond properly to his claims for past due fees and compensation from the Oct. 3-27 period.
